ASYLUM FOR DESTITUTE CHILDREN.
PROSPECTUS.
IN consequence of the number of destitute and deserted children of all ages, who crowd the streets and alleys of this city, it becomes a matter of pressing necessity that some measures be adopted for their reclamation from the state of wretchedness and vice in which they are now living, before they attain an age when reformation is more difficult. With this view, it is proposed to establish an Asylum for the reception of destitute and abandoned children who may be classed as follows:—
1. Children found by the police or others, without protection, whose parents cannot be discovered, or whose parents have been convicted as vagrants, drunkards, or disorderly characters, unfit to have the care of their children.
2. Children abandoned by their parents, and left without friends or protection.
3. Children, either of whose parents is an abandoned or dissolute character, and who may be placed by the other parent in the proposed Asylum, on payment of a fixed sum for their maintenance.
It is proposed to give these children a sound and useful education, and to train them in available habits of industry, until they reach an age when they may be disposed of in the manner which may be most conducive to their individual interests and the general good of society.
In aid of these objects, application will, if necessary, be made to the Legislature, for specific enactments calculated to secure the ends proposed. There seems no reason for doubting that such powers will be accorded, and that, considering the importance of the undertaking, a portion of the expenses will be met by a vote of the Legislature. A large sum, however, must be raised from private sources. An appeal is, therefore, now made to the public, with the confident expectation that such an institution will be most liberally supported. To urge the necessity of its speedy establishment, by a narrative of facts, however pathetic seems needless, as only an occasional glance at the police reports, or even a single walk through the streets of the city, will be sufficient powerfully to enlist the sympathies of the benevolent on behalf of the proposed Institution, and to induce them to subscribe to its funds.
A Provisional Committee has been formed, consisting of the following gentlemen, any of whom will be happy to receive the names of intending subscribers:—

Allen, George, Esq.	Elliott, Gilbert, Esq.

[ADVERTISEMENT.]
On board the schooner Rapid,
23rd March, 1852.
AT a meeting of the passengers, cabin and steerage, for the purpose of expressing their indignation at the treatment received on the passage from San Francisco to Sydney,
It was moved and seconded that Dr. Conyngton do take the chair, which was carried.
Moved that P. Rowan be Secretary to the meeting.—Carried.
Resolved, that we, the undersigned passengers on board the schooner Rapid, consider that C. Creswell is guilty of a direct violation of contract in not having on board and serving out provisions in accordance with the bill of fare promised to said passengers at San Francisco.
Resolved, that our inconvenience and misery has been further increased by the inadequate means furnished on board the vessel for preparing and cooking our provisions.
Resolved, that we consider C. Creswell to have wilfully violated his engagement in not having a Surgeon on board, as promised in his advertisements in the public papers at San Francisco.
And further resolved, that we consider the conduct of Captain Creswell, when applied to to redress those grievances, as anything but courteous or gentlemanly.
Resolved, to prevent similar impositions on passengers by masters and owners of vessels, that we consider it our duty thus publicly to state our grievances.
Resolved, that we tender our sincere thanks to Mr. Beer, sailing master, Mr. Van Norden, mate, and the crew, for their skill in navigating the vessel, and their gentlemanly treatment towards the passengers.
Resolved, that those resolutions be published in the Sydney Morning Herald.

GOOD NEWS,
LARGE AND EXTENSIVE STOCK.
"GOLD!" "GOLD!!"
SAMUEL DAVIS, of the Australian Store, Goulburn, begs to acquaint his friends and the numerous arrivals for the Gold-fields at Tuena, Araluen, and Turi Turi, that his stock is the largest and most complete of any establishment out of Sydney, and that he is determined to sell at such prices as will render it impossible for any house, even in the great capital of New South Wales, to compete with him, everything being imported direct from the manufacturer, and bought for cash by his agent.
To attempt to enumerate the varied assortment would be impossible. His old friends are fully aware that his is the cheapest house in the southern district, and new comers will soon satisfy themselves that that character is well deserved.
Cradles, shovels, spades, and every description of digging apparatus can be got positively cheaper than at Sydney, or at any other store in the colony.
Wool, Tallow, Sheepskins, Gold, and other produce, bought for cash, in any quantity.
P.S.—S. D. is prepared to advance on Gold, and other produce consigned to his Agent in Sydney, who is sure to obtain the highest market price. Observe!

THE ROAD TO HEALTH!
HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Cure of a Disordered Liver and bad Digestion.
Copy of a Letter from Mr. R. W. Kirkus, Chemist, 7, Prescot-street, Liverpool, dated 6th June, 1851.
To Professor Holloway.
Sir—Your Pills and Ointment have stood the highest on our sale list of Proprietary Medicines for some years. A customer, to whom I can refer for any inquiries, desires me to let you know the particulars of her case. She had been troubled for years with a disordered liver and bad digestion. On the last occasion, however, the virulence of the attack was so alarming, and the inflammation set in so severely, that doubts were entertained of her not being able to bear up under it; fortunately she was induced to try your Pills, and she informs me that after the first, and each succeeding dose, she had great relief. She continued to take them, and although she used only three boxes, she is now in the enjoyment of perfect health. I could have sent you many more cases, but the above, from the severity of the attack, and the speedy cure, I think speaks much in favor of your astonishing Pills. (Signed) R. W. KIRKUS.

In accordance with recent advices from Professor Holloway, of 244, Strand, London, the above invaluable Medicine will in future be sold at REDUCED PRICES at the stores of the undersigned, viz., 3s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 14s., 28s., and 42s.
A similar reduction at wholesale.

The Warrata steamed 45 days only during the passage; her unusually long voyage arose from her having experienced light winds, and not being rigged for sailing. The Yarra Yarra arrived at the Cape on the same day that the Warrata left. She spoke nothing on the passage. The Warrata is lying at the Company's Wharf, and will no doubt be found worth the inspection of the public; but the late hour at which she arrived last night prevents us giving a more lengthened notice of this fine steamer in this morning's publication.

The Mercury, from Newcastle, has put into this port in consequence of not having her complement of men. She is bound for Launceston with a cargo of coals.

The Rapid, from California, reports the Corsair which sailed from San Francisco, January 19. The Abelina, Captain Pritchard, from the Navigator Islands was at Tongataboo, when the Rapid called at that island, and she sailed for Sydney two days before the Rapid left.

The John Potter, having sailed from San Francisco, previous to the Rapid, brings no report, except having spoken the Montezuma, of New London, in lat. 40.5 south, long. 172 west, out 7 months, with 200 barrels, and bound for the Arctic.

The Margaret brings no fresh news from the whaling grounds.

EARL GREY'S PERFIDY AGAIN!

"I believe there is no longer any doubt that all your prayers and remonstrances are in vain. The Government, or Lord GREY, which is the same thing in this question, will not retract an inch as regards transportation to Van Diemen's Land, or the separation of Moreton Bay with the view of declaring that district a receptable for convicts."—Our London Correspondent.

THE people of Sydney have this week been twice startled by news from England. On Tuesday morning, they were startled by the tidings that LOUIS NAPOLEON had dissolved the National Assembly, and placed all France under a Military Despotism. On Wednesday morning they were still more startled by the astounding announcement quoted above.

Not that either event was altogether unexpected; but the ear is not the less shocked by a loud clap of thunder, because the gathering of the storm had been previously observed. We had long been watching the portentous signs exhibited on the Downing-street horizon, awaiting the event with deep anxiety—but with an anxiety not unmingled with hope that the event might prove less fearful than the omens. We feared, but could scarcely believe, that Earl GREY would disregard the new argument against transportation supplied by our great discovery. We feared, but could scarcely believe, that he would set the AUSTRALASIAN LEAGUE at defiance. We feared, but could scarcely believe, that in spite of these two powerful dissuasives, he would still deluge Van Diemen's Land with his convicts, and still persist in his intention to send them to Moreton Bay.

Our fears are realised; our scepticism is at an end. The storm has burst, and whatever might have remained amongst us of reliance on the common sense, the common justice, the common humanity, of the Secretary for the Colonies, has been shivered by the bolt. "It is clear," says our London Correspondent, "the LEAGUE and the united voices of all the colonies of East and South Australia on the subject of transportation, are met by the British Government with haughty defiance. It must now be a regular stand-up fight between the colonies and the mother country." The authority for this dreadful statement is the report of Mr. KING, the Victoria delegate, of what he had heard from Earl GREY's own lips. So lately as the 25th November, that gentleman had an interview with his Lordship, who then distinctly informed him "that convicts would still be sent to Van Diemen's Land," and added, "that nearly every respectable man in the Moreton Bay district had petitioned for separation." And this has been officially communicated to the Executive Board of the League by their London correspondent. The fact, therefore, is beyond all doubt.

What is to be done? Are we to sit down quietly under this monstrous injustice? Are we to give up all as lost? Surely not. The case is bad enough, but it is not past hope. We have truth and reason on our side, and that consideration alone is sufficient to keep us from despair, and to nerve us to renewed exertions. We have, moreover, powerful supporters in London. The leading daily journals sympathise with our wrongs, and are ready to do all that can be accomplished by the Press towards obtaining redress. We have energetic friends in both Houses of Parliament, on whose advocacy we may fully rely. And, better still, the LEAGUE is represented in the British metropolis by a regularly constituted Board, whose members unanimously "desire to assist in the attainment of the great object for which the LEAGUE has been established," and are "prepared to adopt all the measures in their power for urging the claims of the colonies on the notice of the Government, the Parliament, and the country at large." This Board will not only keep the question alive by all seasonable agitation, but will be at all times ready to furnish the conductors of the Press and members of Parliament with correct information on the various points connected with it, and thereby give greater pungency and effect to their exertions in our behalf.

But let us not forget that the fountain-head of all the influences which can be brought to bear on England as regards this question, exists amongst ourselves. "I should mislead you," says our London Correspondent, "if I did not say, that, from my estimate of Parliamentary and general opinion on the subject of transportation, very much more will depend on the colonists themselves, and the energetic action of your local legislatures, than on anything that can be done in this country." The Legislatures have each and all done their duty, and done it nobly; and we have no doubt they will each and all do it again as nobly. But the people themselves are once more called upon to be up and doing. It ought to be shown that Earl GREY's coup d'etat has not been heard of in the colonies without sensation—that it has in fact shocked, disgusted, and alarmed us. We are strongly of opinion, that the Executive Board of the League, acting on the information which has been officially communicated to them, ought to take measures, and that as promptly as possible, for causing public meetings to be held in all the colonies, for the purpose of expressing the sense entertained by the inhabitants with regard to this last outrage on their feelings and their rights. And we would suggest to the anti-transportationists in the Moreton Bay district, whether they do not owe it to themselves to repudiate the calumny cast upon them by Earl GREY in his assertion to Mr. KING, that nearly every respectable man in that district had petitioned for separation in his Lordship's own sense. Why should he have referred to this petitioning at all, if he did not identify Separation and Transportation as practically one and the same thing. Is it so in fact? Did not many petition for separation for its own sake, without any wish that it should be a stepping-stone to convictism? If so, and the fact cannot be doubted, it becomes these petitioners to set the wrong-headed Minister right; and it becomes all their neighbours who are opposed to the degrading of the district into a penal settlement, and especially a penal settlement surrounded by fields of gold, to co-operate in opposing his Lordship's insidious schemes.

We trust that the whole Australasian family will again give a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether, in this great cause of common self-defence under circumstances of common and imminent danger.

We rejoice to say that since the foregoing article was penned, we have learned that at a sitting of the Executive Council of the League last evening, it was resolved to call a Public Meeting on this subject early next month. This is taking time by the forelock, and is highly creditable to the zeal and energy of the Council.

THE MAURITIUS.

By the Fanny Fisher, we received files of Port Louis papers and trade lists to the 28th January ultimo.

Previous to the arrival, on the 17th of January of the overland mail, there had been an unusually active business doing in the sugar market; but advices of a further decline having been received by that mail, the market had become quite stagnant, and quotations merely nominal. The quantity of sugar shipped from the 1st to the 27th of January, for London, Cork, Greenock, Liverpool, the Cape, Sydney, and Hobart Town, was 85,193,342 lbs. Freight had declined, and £2 was accepted for the United Kingdom.

On the subject of the unpromising aspect of the sugar interest, the Commercial Gazette has the following remarks:—

The declining state of the sugar market has justly alarmed those who are connected with the planting interests. In a colony like ours, dependent as it is for its prosperity on the remunerating price of one article alone, every fluctuation—every anticipated change in duty—every new competitor—every external improvement, indeed every movement in other sugar producing colonies, causes a vibration here which makes the weak tremble, and the strong call forth their strength.

Cuba, the West Indies, beet root, and equalized duties, are constantly before us, and many ask whether Mauritius is to be driven out of the field in 1854, when all protection on British Colonial sugar is to cease.

Those who think that nothing but ruin threatens the colony, and who are, we admit, men of experience and interested in the agriculture of the colony, have decided to address the Imperial Government for a continuation of the protection of 4s. 6d. per cwt. at present accorded, and according to the Act of Parliament to be reduced yearly until July, 1854. Our wish is that this protection may be allowed to exist a few years longer; our opinion is, however, that we have now gone too far to recede; we have admitted that with Free Trade in its fullest extent we can compete with any adversary. Therefore have we asked for the abolition of all protection on imported British produce and manufacture—and we have been credibly informed that the Imperial Government has approved of the ordinance to that effect adopted here some months ago.

Here then we have free trade with all countries, and our sugar still protected against equal foreign competition. Can we reasonably ask for further continuation? But if we are ruined, say the planting interest—if we cannot produce as cheap as the Cubans, and the beet-root manufacturers of Europe, what is the use of preaching to us about what has been done and what cannot be undone?

The chance of ruin must be proved to us. We say neither slave sugar nor beet-root sugar can be produced cheaper than you can produce it. Cuba is beating you not so much by cheaper labour as by more extensive improvements in cultivation and manufacture. Beet-root contains only half of the sugar the cane does, and no soil can surpass yours in productiveness. To compete with both, we must have the same material, and labour at as low a rate as labourers will work for; we see no other way of preparing for the future. It seems to be a question whether the projected beet-root manufacturers will be able to compete with the colonies on equal conditions. There is one point that we must not lose sight of; we are deprived of the right of refining sugar here on account of the extra rates of duty, which is a protection to the British refiner; in short, any artificial improvement in quality is taxed. This is a grievance we should complain of until it is remedied.

It is not for us to-day to enter into the question of the cost of production in this colony, it varies in different districts and sometimes on different estates in the same district; but from information which we can depend upon, the planter who is the real proprietor of his estate has been far from a loser of late years. We, as well as our correspondents, have repeatedly prepared the planter for this reduction, and warned him to work in consequence. And it is with the conviction that we shall be able to compete with all parties when the time comes for the struggle, that we object to any further demand for protection; it would be unreasonable and could not be conceded.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

SUPREME COURT.—THURSDAY.

NISI PRIUS SITTINGS.

BEFORE Mr. Justice DICKINSON and a Special Jury of Twelve.

ROSSITER AND ANOTHER v. DOAK AND OTHERS.

This was a feigned issue raised by a Judge's order, under the Interpleader Act, and in the nature of an action of trespass. The declaration alleged that on the 17th of January last, the defendants had seized and carried away certain goods belonging to the plaintiff. The plea was that at the time of the alleged trespass the plaintiffs were not legally possessed of the goods in question. The question at issue was then simply as to the legal possession of the goods at the time of the alleged trespass.

Counsel for the plaintiffs—The SOLICITOR-GENERAL, Mr. FOSTER, and Mr. BROADHURST; attorney, Mr. SHUTTLEWORTH. Counsel for defendants—Messrs. DARVALL and FISHER; attorney, Mr. J. R. BRENAN.

The plaintiffs, who were wholesale drapers, having held a bill of sale from one J. R. Torr, also a draper, of Free Trade Hall, King-street, to secure the payment of £1468 13s., for goods, and payments for such other goods as might be subsequently supplied, had seized the goods of Torr and removed them to their own premises; while there, the defendants, who were execution creditors of Torr, made or caused to be made, a seizure, which formed the groundwork of the present action. The first witness called for the plaintiffs was Dr. Tierney, the attesting witness of the bill of sale from Torr to the plaintiffs. This witness admitted having seen Torr sign the deed, but did not recollect his going through the form of sealing; he added, however, that the deed having been signed by Torr, was carried away by Mr. Lazarus, one of the plaintiffs, without any opposition on the part of Torr. The account given by this witness of the matter was, substantially, to the following effect. On the day that the bill of sale was signed, Messrs. Lazarus and Torr met at his (Dr. Tierney's) house, when Lazarus requested Torr to sign this instrument. Torr refused to do so, and witness strongly urged him to be firm in this refusal until he should have an opportunity of consulting an attorney. Torr said that, by signing this, he should be acting unfairly to the rest of his creditors. To this Lazarus, who was still urgent to have the deed signed, replied that it would make no matter, as he did not intend to act upon it, unless to save Torr from persecution by his other creditors. To this, according to the witness, Lazarus "pledged his honour and soul;" and the deed was finally signed, neither Torr nor the witness reading it; and the latter not even reading the attestation to which he affixed his signature. A warrant of attorney was at the same time tendered for signature by Lazarus, but Torr persisted in refusing to sign it. On being pressed, Dr. Tierney admitted that the bill of sale, had, as he heard, been either left with Torr on the previous day for perusal, or at all events had been spoken of, before the time of execution. He admitted likewise that he had a claim against Torr, who was a brother-in-law of his, to the extent of £1000, and that he had himself an action against Rossiter and Lazarus similar in its nature to the one then in the course of trial. The desire expressed by Lazarus, he stated, was simply that of securing his own goods, and although Torr offered to give him his goods back, this offer was not accepted.

The condition of the bill of sale was, that the goods should be delivered up to Rossiter and Lazarus immediately upon Torr's making default of the amount secured whenever the same might be demanded. A demand by Lazarus, and a declaration by Torr of inability to pay, were both proved, although there was no pointed evidence as to the precise amount thus demanded. Immediately upon this declaration by Torr of his inability to pay, Lazarus placed a young man named Herney in possession of the goods, or rather of Torr's business, with instructions to receive all the cash. Torr made no opposition to this, and matters went on thus from the 6th of January to the 8th. On the latter day Torr asked Herney for some money, which he refused to give, whereupon the former had the till broken open and took possession of the cash therein. On the following day, Lazarus, with his attorney, some assistants, and three policemen, removed all the goods to the premises of Rossiter and Lazarus, Mr. Torr and his attorney passively resisting such removal. After this, Torr gave warrants of attorney to his other creditors, and on the day named in the declaration these goods were levied upon at plaintiff's premises, by Mr. Brown, the Sheriff's bailiff, for £88 15s., at the suit of the present defendants.

There was evidence by plaintiff's attorney, that the bill of sale had been handed by him to Torr on the 16th or 17th July, (its date being the 18th), in order that he might peruse it or get it perused. There was evidence, likewise, that at the time when Torr took "Free Trade Hall" of Rossiter and Lazarus, he took it with about a thousand pounds worth of stock; and some ribbons and other goods supposed to have been part of this original stock, was shown to have been there at the time the goods were removed by plaintiffs. Further goods were shown to have been supplied to Torr by plaintiffs, but their precise amount did not appear. The bill of sale recited a proposed additional supply of goods to the extent of £2000 beyond the amount admitted then to be due, and that security was given for the whole, Rossiter and Lazarus being empowered to seize and sell all the stock in case of default, with a trust to pay to Torr or his representatives any amount over and above the sum necessary to meet their claim, which was to be gathered from their own accounts.

The defence raised in effect three questions first, that the bill of sale had not been properly executed; secondly, that this instrument, if executed at all, was bad, as having tended to defeat and defraud the creditors of Torr, and to delay the payment of their claim; thirdly, that even supposing this bill of sale to be sustainable, there had been no real default, the plaintiff having, subsequently to its execution, made a fresh arrangement for payment of their claims against Torr, totally relieving the latter from his liability to pay the whole of this claim on demand.

In support of this case Torr himself was examined. This witness stated that he took the house in King-street, subsequently known as Free Trade Hall, from Rossiter and Lazarus, from whom also he took a supply of goods, giving bills for their value. Afterwards Mr. Lazarus applied to witness to sign the bill of sale, stating as a reason for this step that he had been unable to get Torr's bills discounted, which the bill of sale would enable him to do. The account given by Torr as to what passed at the time of signing the bill of sale was much the same as that given by Dr. Tierney, especially as to their being no formal "delivery" of the deed at the time of signing it. Some time after this Rossiter and Lazarus agreed, as a new arrangement, to take three bills at four, six, and nine months, for £164 12s. 7d. each, and a weekly payment of £50, to be continued until the whole debt to Rossiter and Lazarus was cleared off, the latter agreeing to take up the old bills then outstanding. The weekly payments of £50, from this time, the 3rd of October, until within a fortnight of the time the goods were carried away, the 5th January, were duly made. The instalments of those two weeks were, however, due at the time of the seizure. Before this, also, Lazarus had returned to Torr the three small bills given at the time of making this second arrangement; saying that they were of no use. The amount demanded by Lazarus on placing Herney in possession, was about £1600; and Torr's reply to this demand was, that it was very absurd to expect a cheque from him for such an amount. Herney, as before stated, continued in possession, Torr refusing to permit him to take away any money. A day or two afterwards, however, while Torr was absent, £25 was taken from the till to Messrs. Rossiter and Lazarus, who refused to return it to Torr. It was then that the latter took possession of, and broke open the till, and on the subsequent day Lazarus took away the goods. The property thus removed amounted, according to the evidence of Torr, to £3000 at wholesale prices, of which about £1000 worth only had been procured from Rossiter and Lazarus. On cross-examination, Torr admitted that just before this seizure he had met Lazarus by appointment, and told him that he had a bill coming due, which he would be unable to meet unless the two weeks payment of £50 were allowed to stand over. Torr could not say but that, at this time, he might have said his debts were only £800, whereas they were between £1500 and £1600; but he said that he made out an account shortly afterwards, which he at once showed to Lazarus. His debt to Dr. Tierney, he said, was not more than £400, although the latter had given security for other debts, making his whole claim more than £1000. Torr said that he had no capital at the time he took the shop, except such as he could borrow, although he expected some consignments to the extent of about £150—which had since come, and had been carried off with the other goods. Of this absence of capital the plaintiffs were aware. He further stated, that at the time of signing the bill of sale, which he believed would only give security over the goods actually supplied by Rossiter and Lazarus, he owed some £1500 or £1600, in all, to various other parties, his only means to pay whom was the stock in his shop.

There was, it was proved, no attempt to take possession under the bill of sale from the time of its execution until the default before mentioned, and a number of witnesses were called, who proved that in dealing as men of business with Torr, whose creditors they were, they had no knowledge of the bill of sale, Torr acting as if the absolute master of his shop and stock.

The SOLICITOR-GENERAL, in reply, contended that there was no fraud, either legal or moral, in the procuring of the bill of sale, or in the actings of the plaintiffs under it. The probable understanding was, that Torr should procure all or most of his supplies from the plaintiffs, in which case the interests of no other creditor could be affected. Even as it was, the credit was, it might be assumed, given to Torr on account of the support given to him by his relative Dr. Tierney, rather than on account of his shop and stock. There was no departure from the conditions of the bill of sale, but a mere indulgence to Torr, who had not complied even with the conditions of this indulgence, and the plaintiffs were in every way warranted in reverting to their remedy under the deed.

His HONOR briefly summed up. With regard to the operation of the bill of sale upon the stock, the authorities, he said, were conflicting. He should advise the jury, therefore, for the purpose of the present question, to assume that the bill of sale, if valid at all, would cover not only the stock then in the shop, but that to be afterwards acquired. He should, at the same time, reserve leave for the reduction of damages to a nominal amount, in the event of this mode of considering this question being held wrong. As to the execution of the bill of sale, it was true that no deed was complete until it had been actually delivered, but in order to constitute a delivery it was not absolutely necessary that the formal terms "I deliver this as my act and deed" should be used. All that was required was that, in addition to the signature, there should be a seal, and that this seal should be adopted. If, therefore, they believed that the deed had been carried away by Lazarus, with the consent of Torr, this would be sufficient to constitute a delivery. An engagement by a deed under seal could only be varied by a similar instrument, and the agreement to pay £50 would not therefore amount to such a variance; but even if it did, there was evidence of two defaults, which would warrant Rossiter and Lazarus in falling back upon the powers conferred by the bill of sale. The plaintiffs, therefore, if they acquired possession of the goods under the bill of sale, would have prior possession of them to that of the execution creditors, and the latter would have seized, not the goods of Torr, but the goods of Rossiter and Lazarus, unless the deed had been a fraudulent one, and therefore void. The question of fraud, or bona fides, was one solely for the decision of the Jury. It was for them to judge, from the actings of the parties, whether the bill of sale had been concocted between Lazarus and Torr for the purpose of defrauding the creditors of the latter, and upon the decision of this point, in fact, the whole question would turn. His Honor also drew attention to the leading points of the evidence, and quoted to the Jury from certain legal authorities as to the question of fraud.

The Jury, after having retired for some forty minutes, found a verdict for the plaintiffs. Damages, £3000.

The case lasted until nearly seven o'clock P.M., when the Court adjourned until this morning. The case for trial to-day is Doe dem. Devine and others v. Wilson and others.

ASSAULT AND ILLEGAL IMPRISONMENT.—On Wednesday, Constables Twitchett and M'Mahon appeared, on summons, before their worships the Mayor and Mr. Darvall, to answer the complaint of Eleanor Pegg, a married woman, residing in Charles-street, Riley Estate, for having on the 16th instant, unlawfully assaulted her, and without any legal warrant or other authority whatever, imprisoned her in a watch-house for fifteen hours. Mr. W. Roberts conducted the prosecution, and Mr. Cory the defence. Mrs. Pegg deposed, that she resided with her husband, in Charles-street, Riley Estate; between the hours of seven and eight on the evening of the 16th March instant, she was in her chamber undressing her child, about five years of age, when the street door, which a few minutes before she shut and locked, was burst open, and the two defendants came through the front room to that in which she was, seized hold of and dragged her out into the street, and thence to a watch-house; that they dragged her by the arms and by the hair of her head, and with their staves beat her about the arms and body; she was stupified from the effects of the blows, and was therefore not able even to surmise how many blows she received; she had been compelled to call in Dr. Duigan, and was still under his care, suffering great pain about her body and arms, and was unable to use her right arm in consequence of an injury inflicted on the wrist; it was about 8 o'clock in the evening, as near as she could recollect, when she was locked up in Druitt-street watch-house, whence she was afterwards taken to the female watch-house in Clarence-street; next morning taken to the Police Office, whence she was released about eleven in the forenoon; defendants did not tell her on what charge they took her into custody, nor show her any warrant for her apprehension. Cross-examined: Saw Paddy Hickey that night, but did not speak to him; had not spoken to him for two months; was fined 5s. at the Police Office on the deposition of one of the defendants; had no quarrel with her husband that night, nor for three weeks previously; was not drunk on the 16th, nor noisy; said nothing at the door to any one except to her child, telling her to come in, as it was time for her to go to bed, then shut the door, and it remained shut until defendants burst it open; her husband was not at home; was not put on a barrow by defendant, but was dragged like a dog to the watch-house; they dragged her by the hair of her head from her bed-room to the street; she resisted them until they had her outside the house, but then gave it up as useless, and walked to the wacth-house. Re-examined: Was not taken into custody in the street, but in her shut bed-room as before described. Mrs. Jane Webb deposed, that she saw the two defendants in conversation with Hickey for about a half-hour, and on leaving him they proceeded to Mrs. Pegg's, burst in the door, and shortly after she saw her dragged out by them into the street; and walked away by them; she supposed from what she had subsequently been informed, to the watch-house: they were very violent, and acted very inhumanely towards Mrs. Pegg; she could not have thought that two men could be found who would act in such a manner with a woman; when they took her away they left the street door open, and an infant alone in the house. Cross-examined: Lived opposite to Mrs. Pegg, and witnessed the proceedings from the door of her own house; did not hear any noise in the street previously, but thought she would if there had been any; she thought defendants used more violence than was necessary to take the woman into custody; she was dragged out of her own house into the street, round the corner, and out of sight in a moment. Charles Strickson was sitting at his own door, nearly opposite Mrs. Pegg's house, where he saw two constables burst in the door, and presently after drag the woman out by her two arms; could not say whether both constables pushed against the door, but both went in. Cross-examined: Had been sitting with his family at the door for about two hours when this occurred; had not seen Mrs. Pegg over her own thresh-hold since about half-past five o'clock; a few minutes before the constables broke in she was standing inside the door: she was not drunk; heard the latch or lock of the door forced; Hickey was standing at his own door; heard Mrs. Hickey say to some one, as she was shutting the door, "go and ——." Re-examined: She was then inside the door of her own house, and not in the street. Dr. Duigan deposed that on the 17th March he was called upon to attend Mrs. Pegg, who was still under his treatment: he found the right arm severely bruised, the tendons stretched, and a partial luxation of the wrist; she has not yet any power in her wrist, nor will she for some weeks to come; from the knee to the hip on the right side was a mass of at least a dozen bruises; they were not such bruises as would be produced by falls, but by blows; they were evidently of recent infliction, certainly within three days; the injury to the wrist could not be the result of a blow, but of a sudden and violent wrench. Mr. Roberts said, that he had now made out a sufficient case (though if necessary he had several other witnesses) to call on their worships to commit the defendants for trial. Mr. Cory, for the defendants, said, the woman was taken into custody for obscene language, for which she was fined 5s., and under the 5th section of the Vagrant Act, his clients were perfectly justified in their actings in reference to her. Their worships declined to decide on the course they should adopt until they had heard the evidence on the other side, when they would either deal with the case summarily, or send it to another Court, as the circumstances should appear to warrant. The further hearing of the case, however, was postponed until Thursday; when Mr. Chambers took his seat, as well as the justices who heard the case for the prosecution. Mr. Cory's first witness was Patrick Hickey, who deposed that while the defendants were talking to him on the evening of the 16th March, Mrs. Pegg was sitting inside her door, heard her say that one of the constables was a perjured scoundrel, and that he had caused her to eat "ommany" three days; one of them told her to go inside and stop there, when she replied, "go and be — ," at the same time slamming to her door. [Mr. Roberts objected to this evidence going down: it was in evidence, and by this witness, that Mrs. Pegg was not in the street, but in her own house, and the course to be adopted for a breach of the Vagrant Act under such circumstances was clearly indicated under the 8th section. Had she been in the street they were at liberty, and bound, there and then to take her into custody for offensive language; but the 8th section provided for such an offence as that alleged against his client, by making application for a warrant, without which they had no more right to take this woman out of her house as described, and not denied, however bad the words she may have used, than they had to take one of their Worships on the Bench. Their Worships, however, resolved to admit the evidence.] Shortly after she came to the door again, and said, "Come over here, you miserable ——, and I'll give you the price of a ball," the constables were then near the door, she slammed it to, but the lock did not catch, and the door was a little open; the constables went in, pulled her out, and took her away; they did not burst the door open, nor use more force than was necessary; after they brought her out, they dragged her along the street by each hand; did not hear them or either of them, ask her to get up and walk; did not see her put upon a barrow and wheeled along. Cross-examined: I did not give the woman into custody, nor was it in consequence of anything I said that they went to her house; she was a customer, but is not now; had words with her some time ago; she stood inside the house, behind the door, when she used the expressions quoted. Mrs. Mary Richardson, residing near Mrs. Pegg, deposed that about 8 o'clock on the 16th, she heard some bad language, which she believed was used by Mrs. Pegg, but being inside her house, and attending to her family affairs, she could not tell to whom she was addressing herself. James Todd: On the 16th March, lent Twitchett a wheelbarrow, but is not aware what use was made of it. A deposition was then put in, wherein constable M'Mahon, on the 17th March, stated before the Court, that on the previous evening Eleanor Pegg was apprehended by him for using bad language to a man named Hickey, and showing that she was thereupon found guilty, and sentenced to pay a penalty of 5s. This closed the case. Their Worships consulted a few minutes, and then dismissed the information.

COMMITTAL.—Ann Thompson was yesterday committed to take her trial at the Quarter Sessions for stealing on the 28th January last, a muslin dress, value 15s., the property of Fanny Smith. Mrs. Matilda Smith deposed, that she keeps a lodging-house, not a disorderly house, in Sussex-street. On the night of the 27th January she gave the prisoner a bed; prisoner remained at the house until the evening of the next day when she went away; on the morning of the 29th a lodger of hers, Fanny Smith, missed a muslin dress now produced; no one but the prisoner had had an opportunity of taking it; on making search found the dress at Widow Chick's, in Durand's-alley, but had never seen the prisoner since until now; reported the circumstance to the police on the 29th January, and left the dress in their custody until the prisoner should be apprehended. Cross-examined by Mr. Roberts: Did not know how Fanny Smith got her living—did not think it was her business to ask; Fanny sometimes brought home some friends at late hours at night never in the day time. Miss Fanny swore to the dress as her property. Widow Jemima Chick, of Durand's-alley, deposed, that the prisoner brought her the dress to wash, which she agreed to do for 1s. 6d., and that in the early part of the same day it was claimed and taken away by Fanny Smith, prisoner never came to taken away the dress.

A NOVEL ASSAULT.—Mr. R. M. Pite, of Pitt-street, draper, yesterday appeared before the Mayor and Mr. F. O. Darvall, to answer the complaint of Thomas Henry Smith, who deposed that on last Saturday evening Mr. Pite gave him a week's notice to leave his employ; on Monday morning, when he went to the shop, he was met at the door by Mr. Pite, who told him not to go in, as he did not require his services any longer; he (witness) refused to go away unless a week's wages were paid to him; Mr. Pite sent for a policeman to put witness out of the shop, who, on his arrival, declined to interfere; Mr. Pite then laid hands upon him, and in endeavouring to put him out of the shop, in which he did not succeed, he tore witness's coat; witness was in Mr. Pite's employment yet. Cross-examined by defendant: You spoke to me on Wednesday evening about having insulted a customer; a female to whom he (witness) was endeavouring to effect a sale made some offensive remark, to which he replied that she was an ignorant woman, whereupon she said she would never come to the shop again; did not say to her "If you come to this shop again I'll kick your —— out of the shop;" on Saturday evening received the wages due; on Monday morning refused to go out of the shop when ordered. The next witness was Michael Brown, a porter, who knew nothing about the assault, not being in Mr. Pite's employment on Monday, but on the Saturday night previous heard words between Mr. Pite and the complainant; heard Mr. Pite tell complainant that he would pay him, but did not require his services any longer; Mr. Smith said he would not go unless he received a week's wages first. Constable Burrows deposed, that he was sent for to put complainant out of Mr. Pite's shop, but on hearing the circumstance declined to interfere; Smith still refusing to leave the premises without receiving a week's wages, Mr. Pite laid hold of him and endeavoured to put him out. Mr. Pite called John Dibbs, an assistant in his shop, who deposed, that he was present at an altercation between complainant and a female customer about the middle of last week; on Saturday heard Mr. Pite discharge complainant from his service, for insolence to the customer in question; on Monday morning, Mr. Pite met Smith as the latter was entering the shop, and told him not to go in, that his services were not required; Smith insisted upon entering the shop, and upon remaining there unless a week's wages were paid him; a constable was sent for to remove Smith, who refused to interfere; Mr. Pite then endeavoured to put him out, but could not. The Mayor said the Bench considered that an assault was proved, and sentenced defendant to pay a penalty of 20s. with 2s. 6d. costs. Mr. Pite said, "Will your worship be good enough to inform me how I am to act when a person insists upon remaining on my premises against my consent?" The Mayor said that the Bench could give him no advice in the matter.

CHINESE LABOURERS.—An interpreter having been procured, the complaint of Mr. Wentworth against Tan Seck for refusing or neglecting to obey his lawful commands, was yesterday proceeded with. Defendant was found guilty and sentenced to be imprisoned for one month.

THE VAGRANT ACT.—John Harrison was yesterday convicted of having used obscene language at "a public place," i. e., on the Bon Accord Wharf, and was sentenced to pay a penalty of 10s. with costs, or to be imprisoned for seven days.

THE WATER HOLE CLAIM.—Our last information from Ophir is more precise than that published in Saturday's paper. The rain set in in torrents about the Canoblas, whilst the pumps were at work emptying the hole, and was quickly succeeded by floods, the water when at the highest rising several feet above the level of the banks. Indeed, the Summerhill Creek has not been so high for many years past. Unfortunately the water bore with particular force upon the point where the machinery was situated, and rising to an elevation considerably higher than the foundation of the machinery, lifted it from its bed, a portion of it overturning into the hole, whilst the remainder sailed down with the stream. Unless dashed to pieces against the rocks, it is expected however that the latter portion will be recovered. Of course there is a complete stoppage to all digging operations for the present, and considering the thoroughly-soaked condition of the soil, it is not easy to say when they will be resumed.—Bathurst Free Press.

Mr. Newton has requested us to remind buyers of tea and sugar, that he sells, this day, at his rooms, the cargo of the Caldew from China, and the sugar ex Mohawk, from Manila.—Communicated.

Purkis and Lambert remind the public that they sell, this day, at their Mart, at 11 o'clock, hollowware, tinware, pocket cutlery, pint and quart pickles, silk handkerchiefs, French ribbons, neck ties, shooting coats, waistcoats, steel spectacles.—Communicated.

SALE OF VESSELS.—The fine British-built barque Gratitude, and clipper schooner Australasian League, both of them first-rate vessels, will be put up at the City Mart by Mr. George A. Lloyd, this morning, at 12 o'clock and being for sale to the highest bidder, should receive the particular attention of the shipping interests.—Communicated.

TO STATIONERS, BOOKSELLERS, &c.—Mr. Mort begs to direct particular attention to his extensive and unreserved sale of the stock of the late Mr. Thomas Britten, at his rooms, George-street, this day, at 11 o'clock.—Communicated.

PARRAMATTA.

INQUEST.—An inquest was held at the Lunatic Asylum, Tarban Creek, on the 22nd instant, before Mr. C. B. Lyons, Coroner for the district, on view of the body of James Wilson, then and there lying dead. The evidence adduced was as follows:—Dr. Campbell, superintendent of the establishment, deposed, that deceased James Wilson was brought in on Saturday, the 20th ultimo, at one o'clock P.M., by two constables under the usual Governor-General's warrant, from Darlinghurst Gaol; he was moribund; there was no history of his case, the constables knew nothing of him. He seemed to have been labouring under some fatal disease, which had emaciated him to an extreme degree, for he could neither walk nor speak; there was an extensive sloughing sore on the serum; he was saturated with rain, and extremely cold. Wine, arrowroot, and other nourishing stimulants, were administered until he died, at half-past eleven, Monday forenoon. Dr. Campbell also expressed his opinion that Wilson would have died had he remained at Darlinghurst Gaol. Mr. Heyborne, steward of the establishment, deposed, that after some nourishment had been given to deceased he spoke, though he had previously made many attempts to do so without success; he said he was a Scotchman, the only son of his father, and had arrived in Sydney in the ship Thomas King about six months ago. The ship had gone to Manila. Verdict—"James Wilson died within twenty-four hours after his admission into the Lunatic Asylum, at Tarban Creek; and the Jury wish to express their unanimous opinion that the deceased should not have been removed in a dying state, especially in such inclement weather."

A MEETING of the members of the Church of England, in the parish of St. John, was held in the vestry of that Church on Tuesday, the Rev. H. H. Bobart, M.A., in the chair. The Chairman having commenced the business by prayer, proceeded to comment on the declaration and petition to the Queen, which has already appeared in the Herald. He said that it was not the time for him to offer any opinion as to the course which the laity should pursue at the present crisis, but simply to ascertain, as far as possible, the wishes of the people, that he might be prepared for the meeting of the 14th proximo. If he could afford any information respecting the Councils of the Primitive Church or other matters of ecclesiastical history, he should be happy to do so.—Mr. Woolls said, that the laity must now consider whether any change in the government of the Church was required, and if so, what changes were best adapted to the circumstances of the colony. If they really believed that something ought to be done, they should then carefully study the petition which had been forwarded for their adoption. For his own part he was rather favourable to the formation of a Synod, but he trusted that the laity would take care that they were fairly represented in it. In the first Christian Council that was ever held, the brethren or laity sat with the Apostles and Elders, and he found that in the Council of Carthage, which was convened in the days of St. Cyprian, the laity were present. The petition appeared to contemplate two houses, "A Synod" and a "Convention." Now, his humble opinion was, that there should be but one body, consisting of the Bishop, Clergy, and lay representatives. Mr. Josiah Betts wished to know whether, on the present occasion, all members of the Church of England would be entitled to vote, or whether it would be left simply for the pewholders and the renters of sittings to vote.—Mr. Staff remarked, that all members of the Church had been invited to attend the meeting, and therefore it would be a very ungracious proceeding now to tell them that they could not vote. The Chairman said, that he considered all members of the Church were entitled to vote, and it was with that view that he had given the notice to which reference had been made. It was then resolved that a committee be formed for the purpose of making arrangements for an adjourned public meeting, for the purpose of taking the opinion of the members of the Church of England, in Parramatta and the district, and that the present meeting be adjourned to a future day, to be appointed to take place sometime before the 14th of April. The chairman then pronounced the Benediction, and the meeting separated.

ILL-TREATMENT AND TORTURE OF TWO HORSES.—Mary Marriott, residing in Church-street South, appeared before Mr. Forbes, P.M., and Mr. Byrnes, J.P., to answer the charge of Mr. Staff, auctioneer, of Campbell-street, for that she the defendant did ill-treat and torture one horse, the property of the prosecutor, contrary to the Act of the Governor and Council, in that case made and provided. Mr. John Ferguson being sworn, deposed, that he saw two horses, one belonging to Mr. Blakefield, and the other to Mr. Staff, in the stable of Marriott, who resides next premises to the witness; he saw the defendant go to the stable into which the horses had run, and take a pitchfork and strike the horses several times, whilst she stood in the doorway, so that the horses could not get out; she then shut the door and went away, but after a while came back again, and repeated the cruelty. Witness sent to the owners of the animals, and Mr. Staff came and asked for his horse; Mrs. Marriott refused to let him go; and Mr. S. fetched the chief constable, and then after a while called his attention to the wounds on the horse. The above statement was confirmed by witness' son. Mr. Ryan, chief constable, deposed to having gone with Mr. Staff; that he examined the wounds, eleven in number, apparently inflicted by a pitchfork, not by prods, but by striking with the prongs downwards. Mr. Staff offered to pay any damage or loss, but Marriott said there was no damage or expense, and allowed Mr. Staff to take the horse, but shut the other horse in the stable. The prosecutor, being sworn, gave similar evidence, with the addition that Mary Marriott and her husband were both drunk; that she said, first, the horses had eaten a hundred weight of hay, then two, and lastly, three; but that there was not the slightest appearance of hay having been in the stable for months before; that he had offered to pay any damage, but Marriott said that there was neither damage nor expense. The Police Magistrate said, that the present was a most glaring case, and fined the defendant forty shillings and costs, in default of payment in seven days, to be sent to jail.

THE EARTHQUAKE.—I referred, and I confess half incredulously, to a rumour relative to the shock of an earthquake being felt in this town. Since then the report has been confirmed, and the resident clergyman tells us he distinctly felt the shock, a little before daylight, on Sunday morning (the 7th instant), the shock lasting about a minute. This is the second convulsion of the kind experienced in this neighbourhood within two years.

SPLIT IN THE CATHOLIC DEFENCE ASSOCIATION.

DUBLIN, FRIDAY MORNING.—You were apprised yesterday that the election of Mr. Wilberforce to the lucrative post of Secretary to the Defence Association was one of those peculiar (or pecuniary) "insults" the least likely of all to be overlooked at the present crisis, and that some revelations might be anticipated as the inevitable result of the preference shown to the Saxon candidate. The storm has burst much sooner than could have been expected from so apparently slight a cause, and the affair has suddenly assumed an aspect so serious as to threaten the crumbling to pieces of the superstructure, which cost months of hard labour to bring to its present state of ricketty perfection. In the Freeman of this morning there appears "an address to the people of Ireland," signed by seven members of the Irish Brigade, including two of the recognised leaders, protesting against the proceedings of the previous day, and laying bare the sores which have afflicted the body of the association from the hour of its ill-conceived birth in August last down to this, the fourth month of its unhealthy existence. A copy of the document is annexed. The three "bondsmen" who took part in the unhappy election of Mr. Wilberforce, and who have refused to affix their signatures to the protest, are Sir Percy Nugent, Bart., Mr. M. J. Blake, and, of course, Mr. John Reynolds:—

"TO THE PEOPLE OF IRELAND.

"Dublin, Dec. 18.

"Fellow-Countrymen,—In the month of August last the Catholic Defence Association was inaugurated.

"Its objects were twofold, the defence of the Catholic religion on the one hand, and the preservation of the Catholic people on the other. Those motives were mutual and inseparable, inasmuch as it is by the defence and preservation of the Irish people alone that the Catholic religion can be guarded and maintained. Virtually the Catholic people of these realms are the people of Ireland; because, were it not for their connexion with the Irish people, the Catholics of the empire would be an enslaved sect, without rank, privilege, and position in the State, and subjects only in their subjection.

"In a religious, as well as a national sense, therefore, the organization of the Irish people becomes a matter of paramount importance; and in a national, as well as a religious spirit, that organization should be conducted. Besides, the Irish people are at this moment threated with expulsion from their national position, and nothing but a great national effort can fortify and sustain them.

"Accordingly, the defence of the Catholic people of Ireland, and of their natural character and position, was a primary object in the foundation of the Catholic Defence Association; and the reliance of the Irish people on that fact was the corner-stone of its stability and strength.

"Gradually it would be difficult to say how—an impression has been gaining ground in Ireland that this most important purpose of the Association has been lost sight of and overlaid, and that that noble nationality which had hitherto been the life and inspiration of the Catholic cause was to be discountenanced and discouraged. The whispers of rumour and the surmises of the Press—the inquiries of anxious friends and the sneers of not less anxious enemies—all told the same tale; but although formidable misgivings sometimes stole over our own minds with reference to the tone and spirit of some of our countrymen, we refused to harbour them as unworthy of the hereditary genius of our people, and replied to all such suspicions in a spirit of persevering confidence.

"We can no longer disguise from ourselves—we can no longer disguise from those who have confided in us, that the decision at which the committee of the Catholic Association has just arrived, fills us with dismay and apprehension as to the conduct of the future policy of the country. In opposition to the wishes of all the five prelates assembled—in direct antagonism to the all but unanimous opinion of the representatives of the people who had fought the Catholic cause, night and day, during the past session, an utter stranger to this country—a gentleman, no doubt, of very high personal character and position, but wholly ignorant of the feelings, habits, and politics of the Irish people—was elected to a position for which, above all other considerations, a perfect knowledge of our national habits, sympathies, and disposition, was absolutely indispensable.

"We are now on the eve of a general election, in which everything depends upon a proper organization of the country; and believing, as we do, that this appointment is fatal to the national, and therefore to the Catholic cause, we should be shrinking from the duty which we owe to the constituents that have chosen us, to the people that have honoured us, to the cause that has been intrusted to our guidance, if we did not, at once and fearlessly, protest against this act of ignoble folly and national degradation.

"To the people of Ireland we make our appeal. It is for you to say whether this policy deserves the fiat of your approval; if it does, we will bow to your decision, and still struggle to overcome obstacles that appear to us insurmountable; but if, on the other hand, as we have too much reason to apprehend, our dissatisfaction pervades all classes of our countrymen, we invite you, by every means, in every locality, through the columns of the press, through your clergy, by communications with the association itself, to give free expression to your opinion.

"We have the honour to be,

"Fellow Countrymen,

"Your faithful servants,

"WILLIAM KEOGH, M.P., Athlone.
G. H. MOORE, M.P., Mayo.
ANTHONY O'FLAHERTY, M.P., Galway.
FRANCIS SCULLY, M.P., Tipperary.
OUSELY HIGGINS, M.P., Mayo.
NICHOLAS V. MAHER, M.P., Tipperary.
TIMOTHY O'BRIEN, Bart., M.P., Cashel."

What follows is a much more singular document. It is neither more nor less than a Rockite notice which has been served on the Freeman's Journal by the Rev. Mr. Cooper, of Marlborough-street chapel, threatening the editor, according to the Tipperary usages, with the consequences of giving publicity to the foregoing manifesto without the same having been first submitted to the judgment of the heads of "the church." Here is a copy of the "notice," and it would be hard to conceive a more precious sample of liberty after the Roman model, as it is understood even in Ireland in the 19th century:—

"Marlborough-street, December 18.

"My dear Sir,—Having learned, from what I take to be sufficient authority, that it is the intention of certain parties, who ought to be the last to do so, to disturb the public mind as to the election of a Secretary to the Catholic Defence Association, which resulted yesterday in the nomination of Mr. Henry Wilberforce—an election, I must say, as one who took an active part in it, conducted with the greatest fairness, and terminating in a choice the propriety and wisdom of which the country, unless purposely agitated on the subject, will, I am convinced, cordially ratify—having, I say, just this moment learned that such a course is in mischievous contemplation, I cannot hesitate for an instant in warning you, as editor of a journal professing, and I believe hitherto honestly so, to promote the interest of the Catholic cause in this country, not to allow its columns to be abused to so vile and wicked a purpose; but, at least, to suspend the publication of any such document until the opinion of his Grace the Primate, as the nearest representative of the sacred interests at stake (for they are those of religion), shall have been taken on the subject.

"Should you hesitate to abide by this, my warning, I then call on you to insert in full this, my letter, by the side of the communication I contemplate, and at the same time I have to inform yourself and the public, that in stating the views expressed in this letter I but anticipate by a few hours their more authentic expression by his Grace himself in an official communication to the honorary secretaries of the Defence Association.

"I have the honour to be, my dear Sir,

"Very truly yours,

"P. COOPER."

The journal thus menaced puts in the following plea in justification of a refusal to comply with the imperious mandates of Dr. Cooper:—"We had it not in our power to grant the first request made in Dr. Cooper's letter without violating our plain and palpable duty as journalists. We therefore comply with the alternative request, and place Dr. Cooper's letter in juxta-position with the document to which it refers. We could have wished that Dr. Cooper had adopted a different tone, and had abstained from using language which, to say the least of it, is not very complimentary, if we are to understand his note as expressing his estimate of our character."

SALES OF ENCUMBERED ESTATES.

Two small properties were set up for sale yesterday, and were disposed of in about half-an-hour. The first consisted of a portion of the Handcock estate in the county of Galway, producing a profit rent of £310 per annum. After a sharp competition it was bought in trust for Archbishop M'Hale, who was present, for the sum of £2900. The second sale was that of a leasehold property in the county of Kerry, held under Mr. H. A. Herbert, M.P., and extending over 2718 acres, subject to a quit-rent of £3 3s. 4d., and producing an annual profit rent of £53 16s. for ever. The biddings for this estate were also very brisk, and finally it was knocked down to the petitioner in the cause at the high figure of £1235, or nearly 25 years' purchase on the rental. There are no less than twelve estates to be put up this day.

PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.

(From the Times, December 5.)

THE annual meeting of this company was held yesterday, at the office in Leadenhall-street, Captain S. Thornton, R.N., in the chair. The meeting was numerously attended.

The report, read by Mr. Howell, the secretary, announced a sum disposable for the half-year's dividend of £50,216. The directors recommended a dividend of 4 per cent. upon the half-year, amounting to £42,000, which left a balance to be carried to the next year's account of £8216. Two screw steamers of 1200 tons, and one of 1800 tons, have been ordered to be built. The two former are expected to be ready in January, and the latter by next May. The directors have also purchased on the stocks two other screw steamers of 700 tons each, for the purposes of the monthly (or more frequent) communication between Calcutta and China. The first, the Shanghai, was despatched for her station on the 22nd of October last, and the second, the Chusan, will be ready for sea early in January. The report also stated that—"In order to meet the growing demands of the public on the company's lines of communication between England, India, and China, &c., for more extended passenger accommodation, and also for an increased rate of speed, the directors have contracted for one of a series of larger steamers, which they have named the Himalaya, measuring upwards of 3000 tons, and to be propelled by engines of 1200 horse power. The hull is now in progress by Messrs. Mare and Co., of Blackwall, and the engines are being constructed by Messrs. Penn, of Greenwich. The directors have every confidence in stating that they expect this ship to realise a higher rate of speed than has hitherto been attained by any large ocean-going steamer. The loss of the Pasha, one of the Company's steam vessels, in the straits of Malacca, on the 21st of July, by collision with the Company's steam-ship Erin, was adverted to in terms of deep regret, on account of the loss of life by which this melancholy accident was attended; but, with this exception, the Company's fleet was reported to be in a most efficient state, and their affairs generally in a satisfactory condition. The directors congratulated the shareholders upon the removal of the difficulties which have hitherto impeded the construction of the railway through Egypt, the works upon which will now be carried forward with all possible speed. The directors finally recommended a dividend of 4 per cent., clear of income-tax, for the half-year ending the 30th of September last, payable on the 23rd instant.

The report having been read,

The Chairman assured the shareholders that the directors would follow up the inquiries already being made in India relative to the loss of the Pasha, and that they would visit with their severe displeasure any person guilty of negligence on that occasion. The rest of the report presented, he said, one unvaried subject of congratulation. The company had, he believed, fulfilled the expectations of the Government, and had increased the confidence reposed in them by the loyal and faithful discharge of all the obligations which they had entered into with the State. The directors had it in their power to assist the Government by the conveyance of troops, &c., to the Cape of Good Hope, and it was a subject of congratulation that, during a period of seven years, and comprehending about 80 voyages, only one mishap had occurred in bringing the mails from China to this country.

General Briggs moved the adoption of the report; and

Dr. Beattie, in seconding the motion, declared that the commencement of the railway through Egypt was owing to the persuasive influence of Lord Palmerston, to whom the company was deeply indebted.

In reply to Mr. Lewin, the Chairman said he had no doubt the new steamers in course of being built for the company would be able to accomplish the speed required by the new contract.

Several gentlemen expressed their satisfaction with the position and prospects of the company, and their confidence in the directors.

The election by the directors of Mr. W. F. De Salis to fill the vacancy at the board occasioned by the death of Sir J. Pirie, Bart., was confirmed; and Mr. J. C. Ewert and Captain A. Nairne, the outgoing directors, were re-elected.

The recommendation of a dividend of 4 per cent. upon the half-year was also agreed to, and the meeting separated after a vote of thanks to the chairman and directors for their services.

The extensive operations of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company will be best seen by a list of the vessels which now form the company's magnificent steam fleet:—

CALIFORNIA GOLD.—The New York Weekly Herald has the following:—"The annexed statement exhibits the amount of Californian gold received at the mint, Philadelphia, the amount of gold coinage, and the shipments of specie from this port, in each of the first ten months of the present year:

MOVEMENTS OF SPECIE AND BULLION TO NOV. 1, 1851.

	Receipts of Cal. gold.	Gold coinage.	Specie exported.
January	4,940,000	2,620,966	1,266,281
February	2,860,000	5,082,937	1,007,689
March	2,634,500	6,285,735	2,368,861
April	2,785,500	3,176,058	3,482,182
May	3,205,600	3,201,262	4,606,135
June	3,570,000	3,653,248	6,462,367
July	3,053,000	3,240,495	6,004,170
August	4,048,800	4,078,329	2,653,444
September	3,960,500	4,087,423	3,490,142
October	4,670,000	5,231,019	1,779,707
Totals	35,727,900	40,002,522	33,026,978

This a very curious table. The receipts of California gold are made up from the returns of the mint, Philadelphia. The aggregate does not, therefore, include all the gold received from California. The arrivals at New Orleans and other ports, may or may not be included in this statement. Steamers from Chagres, bound to New York, have put into Norfolk, Savannah, Mobile, at which points many passengers, with gold, left and proceeded homeward. We have not, therefore, any account of the receipts at those places. It would not be extravagant to estimate the receipts of California gold at all the Atlantic ports, up to the 1st of November, this year, independent of those at the Mint, Philadelphia, at ten millions of dollars, which would swell the aggregate to forty-five millions of dollars. The shipments of specie and bullion from this port to foreign countries, figure up more than thirty-three millions of dollars, which deducted from the amount of California gold deposited in the Mint, leaves a balance of little more than two and a-half millions in our favour. So far as this comparative statement shows anything, it appears that we have been the distributors of California gold to foreign countries—that we have sent it abroad nearly as fast as we have received it—that it was merely passed through this city on its way from San Francisco to the great money markets of Europe. Very little remained among us, and at this rate it would take a great many years to give us any addition of consequence to our stock of precious metals. The only hope we have amidst all this apparent activity in gold, is, that there may be a large amount of bullion in the interior, in the hands of those who have brought it direct from California, and have kept it in their possession. The metallic currency of the country may be increased and improved by the amount thus retained among us.

ROMANCE IN REAL LIFE.

THE late Mr. Basil Montagu, Q.C., whose death at the advanced age of 82, is recorded to have occurred at Boulogne-sur-mer, on the 27th ultimo, was formerly a Commissioner in Bankruptcy, and was so eminent a practioner in such matters that for many years he was regarded as an oracle of the bankrupt laws. So little had been heard of him of late years that many of his quondam friends laboured under the impression that he had long ago discharged the debt of nature. It is not generally known that this distinguished lawyer was the fourth son of John, fourth Earl of Sandwich, by Miss Margaret Reay, a celebrated beauty of her day. The melancholy fate of this lady inspired the deepest public interest at the time, and the whole affair has been justly styled one of the most romantic and extraordinary love tales ever recorded. Miss Margaret Reay, the mother of the late Mr. Basil Montagu, was the daughter of a stay-maker in Covent-garden, and served her apprenticeship to a mantua-maker, in George's-court, St. John's-lane, Clerkenwell. Having, during her apprenticeship, attracted the attention of Lord Sandwich, he took her under his protection, and treated her from that period until her melancholy assassination with the greatest tenderness and affection, which was sincerely returned by Miss Reay, until her introduction by his Lordship to a young ensign of the 68th Regiment, then in command of a recruiting party at Huntingdon, in the neighbourhood of which stands Hinchinbrook, the splendid mansion of the noble house of Montagu. Mr. James Hackman, the wretched but highly gifted hero of this sad narrative, from the first moment of his introduction, fell desperately in love with the mistress of his noble host, and his passion increased with the daily opportunities afforded him by the invitation, he received to his lordship's table. With the object of continuing his assiduous attentions to this lady, and the hope of ultimately engaging her affections, he quitted the army, and taking holy orders obtained the living of Wiverton, in Norfolk, only a few months prior to the commission of the crime which brought him to the scaffold. That Miss Reay had given him some encouragement cannot be denied; the tenor of their correspondence clearly proves it; but gratitude towards the earl and prudential motives respecting the welfare of her children, induced her afterwards to refuse the offer of the reverend gentleman's hand, and to intimate the necessity which existed for discontinuing his visits for their mutual interests and their peace of mind. Stung to the quick by this sudden and unexpected termination of his long cherished and most ardent passion, no doubt can exist in the minds of those who have carefully perused the highly interesting correspondence between the parties, published many years ago by Mr. Hubert Croft, in a volume entitled "Love and Madness," that Mr. Hackman's mind became unsettled, he became weary of his own life, and finally determined that she whom he loved so passionately should share his fate. At this time the Rev. Mr. Hackman was lodging in Duke's-court, St. Martin's-lane, and on the fatal day, the 7th of April, 1779, was occupied all the morning in reading "Blair's Sermons;" but in the evening, as he was walking towards the Admiralty, he saw Miss Reay pass in her coach, accompanied by Signora Galli. He followed, and discovered that she alighted at Covent-garden Theatre, whither she went to went to witness the performance of Love in a Village. Mr. Hackman returned to his lodgings, and arming himself with a brace of pistols, went back to the theatre, and when the performance was over, as Miss Reay was stepping into her coach, he took a pistol in each hand, one of which he discharged at her and killed her on the spot, and the other at himself, which did not, however, take effect. He then beat himself about the head with the butt-end of the pistol in order to destroy himself, but was eventually, after a dreadful struggle, secured and carried before Sir John Fielding, who committed him to Tothill-fields Bridewell, and afterwards to Newgate, where he was narrowly watched to prevent his committing suicide. He was shortly after tried at the Old Bailey, before the celebrated Justice Blackstone, author of the "Commentaries," found guilty, and sentenced to be hanged at Tyburn on the 19th of the month, where he suffered the last penalty of the law with all the firmness of one who felt that he had committed an irreparable injury, and that his life was justly forfeited to the outraged laws of his country, although he persisted to the last that the idea of murdering the woman he so fondly loved originated in the frenzy of the moment, and never was nor could have been premeditated. Lord Sandwich, with a noble-mindedness rarely exemplified in such extreme cases of injury to the pride and sensibility of man, wrote to Mr. Hackman after sentence of death was passed upon him:—

"7th April, 1729.

"If the murderer of Miss —— wishes to live, the man he has most injured will use all his interest to procure his life."

The prisoner replied the same day:—

"Condemned Cell in Newgate.

"The murderer of her whom he preferred, far preferred, to life, suspects the hand from which he has just received such an offer as he neither desires nor deserves. His wishes are for death, not for life. One wish he has—could he be pardoned in this world by the man he has most injured—oh, my lord, when I meet her in another world, enable me to tell her—if departed spirits are not ignorant of earthly things—that you forgive us both, and that you will be a father to her dear children."

It is almost needless to observe that the noble earl did faithfully comply with the wish of the wretched man, and was a good and generous father to all the children of this connection, of whom the learned gentleman just deceased was one.—Morning Post.
